HEADQUARTERS
111th MEDICAL BATTALION
APO #36, U. S. ARMY

L-104

10 February 1945

SUBJECT: "OPERATIONS IN FRANCE."

TO : Commanding General, 36th Infantry Division, APO #36, U. S. Army.

1. Transmitted herewith Historical Data of the 111th Medical Battalion for the month of January 1945.

2. The operation for the period was one principally of holding defensive positions. Until January 19th, the sector was small, being held by one combat team at the time. On that date, the Division moved into the vicinity of Haguenau, holding on a wider front. Subsequently, the front was narrowed, and sufficient power concentrated to discourage any large scale enemy operation.

3. During the first part of the operation: holding on a narrow sector, evacuation presented no especial difficulties. Jeeps with litter racks operated well forward, litter hauls were not arduous, and ambulance routes to the clearing station were short and over good roads. One combat team, committed some 36 hours before establishment of the Division clearing station, evacuated its casualties through the 100th Division facilities. This battalion established its clearing station, command post, and the Division medical supply in the immediate vicinity of the clearing station of the 100th Division. Upon the next movement of the Division, clearing station and medical supply were located some 25 kilometers to the rear of the troops in position, on a main supply route, with good collateral roads. Upon the subsequent shortening of the front held by the Division, the clearing station did not move, finding itself nearer the troops, and with a good road net connecting. The final move, made two days before the close of the period, brought the clearing station, and a unit of the 11th Field Hospital in buildings, still closer to the troops, with a fairly good road net. Evacuation to the rear has been satisfactory, but required as long as five hours for the round trip, in the closing days of the period.

4. The weather has been adverse. Snow covered the ground throughout the period, with fairly heavy snowfall at intervals. The ground remained frozen, facilitating vehicular operating when the clearing station was established in open fields, but increasing the difficulty of tent pitching and refuse disposal. No suitable buildings could be found for clearing station establishment until the last twelve days of the period. Tents suffice adequately when flooring is used, and in temperatures not below 20°. Fuel consumption is excessive however, and housing of sick personnel usually retained in clearing stations is perhaps ill-advised. This difficulty was surmounted by establishing one platoon of the clearing station some distance in the rear in buildings, having it operate as a holding platoon, with casualty processing accomplished well forward. The headquarters detachment was installed in the vicinity of this rear platoon. This plan reduces the number of troops and vehicles in an area close to enemy activity, and enables the Battalion motor section to render service to the vehicles. A further advantage is that a clearing station is in operation along the normal evacuation route in the event a withdrawal should become necessary. The dental prosthetic team, augmented by an attached Army team, operated with the rear platoon. Patients are processed on a duty status, with little loss of time from duty.

5. Medical supplies were very satisfactory, with no critical shortages. Protection of supplies from adverse weather was not difficult. Benzoyl benzoate was difficult to obtain for a short while. Patients with scabies, uncomplicated, are treated in the clearing station, sufficient clothing exchange supplies being stocked by the battalion supply officer. A supply of gas masks are kept on hand, so that all patients evacuated to the rear carry a gas mask. A supply of the head-injury type gas mask is also stocked.

6. Motor vehicles functioned well despite the low temperatures. Second and third echelon repairs, and routine thousand-mile checks were performed without appreciable difficulty. The devotion of motor sections to their duty is commendable.

"OPERATIONS IN FRANCE"

111th MEDICAL BATTALION

JANUARY 1945

L-1042

On the first day of the month all the units of the Battalion were located in a rest area south of Sarrebourg. The battalion CP, headquarters detachment, and one platoon of the clearing company were located at Lorquin. One platoon of the clearing station was located at Tanconville. Company "A" was located at Hatigny, Company "B" at Sitifort, and Company "C" at Cirey-sur-Vesouze. The Division was placed on a six hour alert on the first day of the month.

The 141st RCT moved to the vicinity of Montrbonn on the first day of the month, and were committed to defensive positions shortly after arrival. Collecting Company "A" moved with the CT and opened a station at Montbronn. Their casualties were evacuated to the Clearing station of the 100th Infantry Division pending arrival of the 36th Infantry Division Clearing Station.

On the third of January, the remainder of the Division moved to vicinity of Diemeringen. A learing station was opened on the 4th of January, 1¼ miles NE of Diemeringen through which all Division casualties were processed. One platoon of the clearing station was retained at Tanconville for the purpose of completing treatment on all patients it was holding to permit returning them direct to duty rather than to evacuate them. Headquarters detachment also remained in the rest area to complete a resupply of shortages of clothing and equipment, checking of supply records and repair of motor vehicles, all of which were initiated during the short rest period. Collecting Company "B" moved to Montbronn and Collecting Company "C" moved to Rahling and later to Montbronn.

The Division sector was limited to a regimental front and the positions were defensively located in vicinity of Enchenberg and Lemberg. The three RCTs alternately relieved each other after four or five days committal by each. All collecting companies were ultimately located in the general vicinity of Montbronn. Headquarters Detachment and one platoon of the clearing station were moved from the rest area to Lohr. This platoon of the clearing station was moved to this position to be prepared to support the Division in the event of a movement to a switch position.

RCT 142 was released to control of the 103rd Infantry Division on the 14th and returned to Division control on the 18th. While detached, casualties of the RCT were evacuated by Collecting company "B" to the clearing station of the 103rd Division.

DECLASSIFIED
Authority NND 735017

The 36th Division Archive

The Division sector shifted on the 18th from vicinity Enchenberg and Lemberg to vicinity Haguenau. RCT 141 remained in the former position under control of the 100th Infantry Division until the 23rd of the month at which time it was moved to vicinity Saverne as VI Corps reserve. While attached to the 100th Division, casualties were evacuated to the clearing station of that division. RCT 141 returned to Division control on the 30th.

On the 19th the platoon of the clearing station located near Diemeringen was moved to Wilwisheim in a defensive position which was approximately seventeen miles from the front lines. The platoon located at Lohr began movement to Wilwisheim on the 19th and completed movement on the 20th. The second platoon which was moved from Lohr was again moved on the 22nd to Wassalone, as was the Division medical supply. Headquarters detachment was moved from Lohr to Wassalone on the same day. The Wassalone location was in conformity to a defensive switch position that Division troops may have had to occupy. The switch position was not occupied as the month closed.

On the 30th, the first platoon, located at Wilwisheim, was moved to an offensive position at Stephansfeld where it remained as the month closed.
