Subject: Transmittal of Records.

To : Commanding General, Seventh Army, APO 758, U. S. Army. Through Channels.

1. Pursuant to instructions contained in Letter, Allied Force Headquarters, dated 20 April 1943, file AG 314.7/389 C-M, Subject: Historical Records and Histories of Organizations, transmitted herewith Operations in Italy, July 1944 of this Battalion.

2. Conclusions:

As a result of the continued combined training with the infantry and tanks, I am convinced that it is the most vital part of any training program. Understanding the limitations and capabilities of associated arms makes for a well-unit fighting organization and without training it will only be learned on the battlefield at a cost of many lives. With the intensive training schedule laid down by division of ten hours a day, 6 days a week, the condition of the Battalion both as to equipment and personnel has been strengthened to the state necessary for entrance into combat.

OPERATIONS IN ITALY, JUNE 1944

On the eight day of July, 1944, the Battalion, less full track and 11 1/2 ton's vehicles, completed the first leg of its trip to the Salerno area. The Battalion's wheeled vehicles arrived in the Rome area after making a successful motor march from Cassa Lappi, near Piombino, some 110 miles to the north. A bivouac was set up at 619699, 9 miles northwest of Roma. The Battalion's M-10 Tank Destroyers and half track vehicles were transported from Cassa Lappi by evacuation trailers to the port of Civitavecchia. From this port these vehicles were to be shipped by water to Italy.

The first five days were devoted primarily to motor maintenance and servicing of personal equipment. Concurrently a percentage of the enlisted personnel was held off to visit home during daylight hours. Special arrangements were made to call all personnel. A dance was held in the evening of Saturday, Aug. 11, the enlisted men of the Battalion.

On 11 July, four U.S. and half-track vehicles entered into the Civitavecchia area, and the drivers of the M-10 Park Destroyers and half-tracks were rotated to the 11th, which also gave the opportunity to visit Rome.

On 10 Dec 44, the Battalion Motor Shop made spot inspections of all motor vehicles in the Battalion. 10 tracked vehicles in the Civitavecchia area were taken apart and left for Salerno. There for the motor shop, 100 horses were drawn back to Battalion C-2 and distributed to each company at 100 m/cabs. The motor march started the following morning at 0600 hours. The Battalion came late. It was noon and the march had begun. They took the main bivouac area 25 mil. south east of Salerno, across the Tiber. The 721 tracked and half-track vehicles arrived at Salerno on the same date and were driven to the same bivouac area.

On the evening of 15 July 1944 the Battalion held a review, at which General Sir Franklyn, Divisional Artillery Commander, General Vane, presented the colours to the officers and enlisted men of this Battalion.

and other problems connected therewith; upon providing the Bureau with information concerning the size, weight, dimensions, and make-up of all vehicles; comprising the following and such other information as may be required:

On the 22nd of January, 1942, I was assigned to the 44th Reconnaissance Squadron at Langley Field, Virginia, and became a member of the Warbird Test Flight Team.

In addition to this, seven Army Ordnance Quartermasters completed Army Ordnance Quartermaster school, all drivers had completed training in motor driving and all radios which had been in poor condition were completely repaired.

After this period it was decided that, due to post operations, the M-12 truck was the more suitable vehicle than the M-20. As a result nine M-20's were isolated excess and turned into Ordnance. All personnel had learned the individual arm while in the Testum area and intensive training in communications had been completed.

Upon arrival in the Giuliano area all vehicles were painted and camouflaged and waterproofing was 75% completed. Combined operations with tanks and infantry, physical hardening, communications, security and intensive planning were carried out. "C" Company fired indirect fire of twenty rounds per gun. Replacements had been received, bringing the battalions up to strength both in officers and enlisted men.

At the close of the month the Battalion was again ready for combat.
