TWO 36ERS ON BOWES BROADCAST SEPT. 17

Among the ten 36th Division acts which appeared at the Major Bowes audition this week, two were selected to appear on the coast-to-coast broadcast on Sept. 17, 1942, staged in New York City.

They are: Pvt. William Wahlert, of St. Louis, Mo., bass baritone who sang "The Green Eyed Dragon," and Pvt. Jose Caballero of San Antonio, guitarist, who sang, "Mamma Inez." Wahlert is in Div. Hq., while Caballero is a member of the 143rd Inf.

Starting singing 14 years ago Wahlert has appeared in music groups ranging from college glee clubs to operatic companies. Before induction on April 24th, he sang grand opera with the New York Hippodrome Opera Company.

Guitarist Caballero distinguished himself on Carolina maneuvers when he broke an "enemy" prison, got to a phone, and kept his 143rd buddies informed on Red Army actions.

In New York they will compete for big cash prizes.

QMAN CITED FOR INITIATIVE

Sgt. Joe J. Sanders of Austin, Co. A, 111th QM, was recently cited for his "initiative & foresight" in directing a maneuver convoy

Initiating the citation, Brig. Gen. O.F. Lange, commended the sergeant on leading a 20-truck convoy, gaining contact with an Inf. battalion "making possible the motorization of the Bn. so that it could be transported to a threatened position in the Div. defense."

"The movement was efficiently directed," General Lange continued, "& reached the new sector in time to prevent an enemy breakthrough."

Maj. Gen. Fred L. Walker stated his appreciation for Sgt. Sanders' action & described it as a "very important contribution to the efficiency of the division."

The action took place on July 22, 1942.

THE Inquiring LINE

Q. We've been issued sulfanilamide tablets to take if we're wounded. What's the point of taking a pill for an open wound.

A. You may have to wait some time for treatment if you're wounded on the field. Sulfanilamide acts directly on the blood stream, guards you against infection until the medics arrive.

Q. In camouflage, what is the difference between direct observation and indirect observation?

A. Direct observation applies to what you can see with the naked eye or with field glasses or telescopes. Indirect observation is what knowledge you can gain from photographs. Aerial pix are often a dead give-away even for clever camouflage. The aerial photo will show up, by means of shadow and color difference, many an otherwise foolproof concealment.

Q. What should I do if a flare is dropped while I am on a patrol?

A. Freeze, brother, freeze! And keep your face down in that dirt. Your white face peering up surprized is a dead give-away, with the accent on dead. If you avoid movement during the few seconds of a flare's brightness, you probably won't be spotted. Remember--it's a favorite enemy trick to drop flares in quick succession; don't get too frisky after the first flare dies down.
